18,663. That is the number of names inscribed on the Hall of Remembrance in the National Law Enforcement Museum in Washington D.C. Each name represents a sad story of an officer from across the U.S. who was killed in the line of duty.

To raise awareness of the officers killed in the line of duty and to raise money for the Memorial Fund, Clifton Police Officers Randy Colondres, John Kavakich and Robert Bais, along with Tom Hawrylko, began a 300 mile bicycle trek on May 9.

They were supported on motorcycles and in vans by Clifton Officers Derek Fogg, Brian Fopma, William Bais, Stephen Berge, Gary Giardina and Michael McLaughlin.

On May 12, the Clifton team joined some 1,200 other riders and support people in the nation's Capitol. Together, we raised over $1.3 million to support the Fund and Museum. Over $17,000 in contributions were given here in our hometown.

On behalf of the Clifton members of the Police Unity Tour and the Clifton PBA, we thank all who have supported our cause.

Police Unity Tour: We Ride For Those Who Have Died.

Thanks to support from the businesses shown here and many others companies and residents, a Clifton team of 10 raised over $17,000, as part of a $1.3 million fund drive to keep the memory of Fallen Officers alive. Among the names inscribed on the monument is that of Clifton Police Officer John Samra, who died on Nov. 21, 2003.
